SPEED KING IS KILLED TODAY IN TRIAL RACE

Maj. Sir Henry Segrave Of Britain Fatally Hurt In Accident

Windermere, England, June 13.—(UP)—Major Sir Henry Segrave's speed boat Miss England, hurtling over the water of Lake Windermere at more than 100 miles an hour for a new world speed record, suddenly dived like a bullet today, hurling her crew of three into the water, and injuring Segrave fatally.

Sir Henry and his mechanic, E. Willcocks, were taken out of the water in a daring rescue by a man and a woman spectator. The other mechanic, E. Halliwell, never appeared above the surface again.

At the hospital here, Segrave was found to have both arms and a rib broken and died from his injuries. Willcocks had a broken thigh.

Was Famous Racer

Segrave died shortly after 5 P. M. He was one of the most famous automobile and motor boat speed drivers in the world, noted for his skill and daring. He already held the world automobile speed record of 231 miles an hour, made in Florida, and shortly before the accident had set a new world motorboat record with an average of 98.76 miles an hour.

The record was made on two runs which preceded the third and fatal one. The official time for the first run was 96.41 miles an hour and for the second 101.11. The previous record was held by the American, Gar Wood, at 93.4 miles an hour.

Segrave was estimated to have been going well above 100 miles an hour on the third run when the boat, roaring over the water with a deafening noise, suddenly disappeared in a great shower of water.

Seen By Hundreds

Hundreds of spectators saw the accident and all manner of craft hurried to the scene. But it remained for a spectator, named King, to make the first gallant attempt at rescue. King dived into the water fully clothed and brought up Segrave. A woman helped them both into the boat and then fainted.

The cause of the accident was not determined. Miss England II had a gaping hole in the bottom. It was believed either she had struck a piece of driftwood or one of the whirling propellers broke and crashed through the hull.

Segrave was believed to have been the first man ever to travel more than 100 miles an hour in a speedboat. He wore his special "armor" clothing, including a heavy lifebelt, during the attempt, but the force with which he struck the water was deadly.

A spectator seated in a boat broadcast on to Miss England when the accident occurred said:

Wife Was Nervous

"Miss England seemed to be traveling better than on the other runs. I am sure she was making at least 100 miles an hour. Suddenly the 'step' on the bottom of the boat seemed to burst. The boat swerved frightfully and capsized. Two of the crew were thrown on the starboard side and one on the port side. Only two appeared above the surface."

Shortly before Miss England's trial, Lady Segrave told the press: "I have been confident all along but today I feel nervy, wondering whether everything will be all right."

Superstitious spectators commented on Segrave's recent run of ill luck and admired his courage for making his attempt on Friday the Thirteenth. A spectator described the accident as follows:

"One second Miss England was skimming at 100 miles an hour while the foam was breaking from her bows and the engines screaming ceaselessly. The next second she seemed to dive like a bullet and the scream of the engine died. When we saw the boat again, she was floating like a crippled fish on the surface."

Bad Luck To Come To 27,871 Today As It's Friday the 13th

Chicago, June 13.—(UP)—Today is Friday the 13th, Hoodoo Day, and before midnight rolls around again bad luck will come to at least 27,871 persons.

The calamity in most cases could be averted, the National Safety Council says, but experience in tabulating bad luck over the nation has taught the body the accident toll today will be about the average number even if it is the 13th.

Here's how the bad luck will be distributed, according to the council's figures:

27,500 will be accidentally injured. 265 will be accidentally killed. 47 will fall and be killed. 35 will be drowned.

24 will be burned to death. The figures do not take into consideration the accidents that will befall those who walk under ladders, cross the path of black cats or break mirrors.

The council suggests that those who are superstitious stay in bed but Mark Twain is the authority for the statement that more people die in bed than anywhere else.

LEGGE'S NAME SENT TO UPPER HOUSE BY PRES.

Farm Board Controversy Put Squarely Up to The Senate Now

Washington, June 13.—(AP)—The controversy over the Federal Farm Board's activities in the grain market was placed squarely before the Senate today by the nomination of Alexander H. Legge to serve a second term as chairman of the board.

Intensive criticism of the board's policies has been expressed in business circles, particularly by the United States Chamber of Commerce. This was based upon the contention that the board's use of its $500,000,000 revolving fund in buying grain hampered competition and was detrimental to private interests.

Announcing Legge's reappointment late yesterday, the White House also made public the nomination of C. C. Teague of California, to serve a second term on the board. At the same time the nomination of W. Cameron Forbes of Boston, as Ambassador to Japan, was announced.

Legge and Teague were originally appointed to serve one year terms ending at midnight tomorrow. The confirmation of Legge was opposed a year ago by farm organizations and Senators from the north-west.

With the Forbes appointment the last of the major diplomatic vacancies was filled. He succeeds William Castle, who served at Tokyo temporarily during the London naval conference and is soon to return to his post of Assistant Secretary of State.

Dixon Golfers Win From Polo Visitors

Dixon Country Club golfers won the inter-city match with members of Edgewood Country Club of Polo yesterday afternoon on the local course by a score of 19 to 9. Eighteen holes were played in the afternoon and a group of 14 players from Polo paired with the Dixon golfers. Oliver Rogers, Jr., turned in the best score of the afternoon with a 36 score for the first nine holes and a 37 for the second flight, a total of 73. The visitors were guests at a banquet served at the club house last evening at 6:30.

Several members of the Dixon Country Club will go to Rockford Sunday where in the afternoon they will enter the invitational tournament which will be played on the Monocessie club course.

MURDER OF NEGRO AUDITOR IN INDIANA TWO MONTHS AGO IS BELIEVED SOLVED; THREE HELD

Indianapolis, June 13.—(AP)—The slaying two months ago of E. D. Pierson, 54, Negro, auditor of the National Baptist Convention, killed, police said, because he "knew too much" about the juggling of a $62,000 fund in the Nashville, Tenn., office of the Negro organization, was believed solved today.

Under arrest here were the Rev. E. J. Westbrook, pastor of the largest Negro church in Indianapolis, and George Washington, 41, described by police as a hired Negro gunman.

At Nashville, police arrested A. M. Townsend, reportedly one of the wealthiest Negroes in the country, secretary of the Baptist Sunday School Publishing Board and auditor of a Negro bank in Nashville. He was released on $10,000 bond. The arrests, detectives believed,

Chicago Mayor Is Silent Concerning Official Circles Today

St. Louis, June 13.—(AP)—Melvin Pryor, an itinerant painter of Indianapolis who told Chief of Police Gerk he was nearby when Alfred J. Lingle was reported, was shot to death in Chicago Monday, was driven about St. Louis today in a police car searching for another man he met at the Michigan Boulevard subway.

Pryor declared the man, who he believed he saw here Wednesday wore a badge, carried a pistol, and ordered him to move on.

According to Pryor's volunteer story he went outside the subway waiting for a friend. The man who warned him, Pryor said, emerged and talked to two men in a parked machine. Then all three went into the tunnel. In a few seconds, Pryor said, he heard a shot and one of the trio ran out and vaulted a fence. Pryor said he left when the crowd gathered and hitch-hiked his way to St. Louis.

Chicago, June 13.—(AP)—His administration harassed by demands of public, press and church for an end of ruthless slaughter, Mayor William Hale Thompson maintained official silence today while reports gained circulation that a secret Cabinet meeting had been called.

The police strategists kept hid whatever plans they have laid to apprehend the killer of Alfred "Jake" Lingle Tribune reporter and pursued their systematic sifting of the city's floaters.

In the four days passed since Lingle was slain in a downtown tunnel the detectives have added no new clue to the revolver and the black silk glove dropped by the slayer in flight.

But they have corralled 1223 vagrants and gangsters; run 377 of them through the gauntlet of show-ups and inspection at the Identification Bureau; and found 11 bearing criminal records.

The courts arraigned 123 of the miscellaneous lot yesterday on disorderly conduct charges, and freed them. The evidence was insufficient.

Mayor Undecided

Urged by inquirers to make known his position in the controversy raging about his police department heads, Mayor Thompson acknowledged today that pressure had been brought for their removal. But he had taken no action.

"Are you considering a change?" he was asked.

"I have made no decision."

He added that no announcement would be made today.

Meanwhile the report was published that Mayor Thompson had summoned his cabinet officers to confer secretly on the situation. Civic organizations and newspaper editorials kept up the cry for action or the supplanting of the Police Commissioner William F. Russell and Chief John Stege of the Detective Bureau.

Something of a mystery arose today with the disclosure that Stege did not send the telegram to New York which resulted in the prompt release yesterday morning of nine notorious gangsters.

The foul blow that sent Schmeling to the canvas when this picture was made also crowned him heavyweight champion of the world. 75,000 fight fans witnessed the contest at Yankee Stadium, New York.

SECOND ATTEMPT AT PRISON BREAK AT JOLIET FAILS

Seven Convicts Were Put In "Solitary" Today Result Failures

Joliet, Ill., June 13.—(AP)—Seven convicts of the state penitentiary awoke today in solitary confinement to ponder the significance of Friday the 13th, while prison authorities congratulated themselves upon foiling two separate escape plots.

Two of the seven were brothers and trustees. All will be dressed in suits of humiliating "stripes" after they return to regular prison activities, probably in 30 days.

Warden Henry C. Hill said both plots depended upon tunnels for success. Each tunnel was 14 feet in length, leading beneath the walls, and that success was not far distant. The authorities were aware of the existence of the first underground passage for the last three weeks, they said, but the second one dug by Albert and George Reinheart, committed in 1927 for a Chicago robbery, was discovered only after a thorough investigation last night.

Plans Well Made

The other escape plot was engineered by James Manning, 30, a Rock Island burglar; John Stearnovich, 29, Cook county robber; William Evans, 38, McLean county bank robber; Henry Rakynski, 22, Chicago

ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS NOW IN SIGHT

Leaders Hope to Wind Up Business Week From Tomorrow

Washington, June 13.—(AP)—With the end of the long tariff controversy in sight, congressional leaders are looking forward to an adjournment a week from tomorrow.

The special session of the Senate for consideration of the London naval limitations treaty will be called immediately by President Hoover but the weary Senators hope to join the House membership in vacation by July 4.

Rivers and harbors legislation gets first call in the Senate after the tariff bill is disposed of today. It probably will not be taken up for debate until Monday. Chairman Johnson of the Commerce committee is hopeful of speedy action on the measure providing an outlay of more than $120,000,000 over a three-year period in waterways improvements.

The House bill liberalizing veterans relief is second on the calendar of preferred legislation and its gets attention immediately after the rivers and harbors contest is ended.

The attitude of President Hoover toward both the rivers and harbors and the veterans relief measure is considered doubtful and there is a prospect that both propositions might be left in conference between the Senate and House until next session opens in December.

Four Alleged Auto Thieves Caught Here

Four youthful alleged auto thieves were being held by the police here today for the theft of a Buick sedan last night about 9:30 from in front of a theater at Homewood, Ill. After driving west to Lomax, Ill., the quartet turned back and west of this city stopped at a service station where they traded a spare tire for five gallons of gasoline. This act created suspicion and the attendant reported to the police.

They were taken in custody on North Galena and Seagren and State Officer K. L. Church. At the police station they gave the names of Ray and Tom Dengler, brothers, Jesse Lacey and Sylvester Shephard, the latter a Negro, who stated that he was picked up by the other three west of Clinton, Ia. last evening. All are being held awaiting the arrival of Homewood police this evening.

PERU MARKET ROBBED.

LaSalle, Ill., June 13.—(UP)—Burglars last night placed a 500-pound safe in a large refrigerator of the Peru meat market to deaden the sound. They smashed the safe and escaped with $100.

PASSAGE BY HOUSE SURE ON SATURDAY

Hoover Expected to Affix Signature To It Next Week

BY PAUL R. MALLON.

United Press Staff Correspondent. Washington, June 13.—(UP)—The Smoot-Hawley bill raising the tariff on imports $107,000,000 a year or more was passed in final form by the Senate today, a year and a half after it began its legislative career. The vote was: 44 to 42, exactly as had been anticipated.

Containing increased duties on sugar, shoes, butter, cements, lumber and bricks among many others, the measure now goes to the House where passage is scheduled tomorrow.

The prospects are it will become a law next week by President Hoover's signature.

Lost Farm Bloc Support

Designed originally to equalize the tariff disadvantages of agriculture with those of industry, the measure lost the almost unanimous support of the Senate farm group on the final roll call. The defeated coalition of farm Republicans and Democrats turned overwhelmingly against the measure when the debenture system of farm relief was omitted. They took the position the increased duties on agriculture will be ineffective while the upward adjustment of many industrial rates will only add further to the burdens of the farmers.

The votes of the administration Republican group and a few democrats furnished the small majority for the measure, which was one of the most controversial in history.

Some of the bill's supporters, notably Senators Reed and Grundy, Republican protectionists from Pennsylvania, cast their votes with public misgivings about the benefits of the measure. Taking exactly the opposite position of the farm groups they say the food stuffs tariffs are too high and the industrial rates insufficiently adjusted to protect American manufacturers fully against foreign competition.

For Expediency.

Like others who voted for the bill, they made clear they were supporting it largely for expediency, feeling business would be better with the question definitely settled.

The final vote came upon the technical parliamentary question of adopting the conference report which contains the latest changes made by House and Senate conferees in adjusting the differences in the measures originally passed by both houses. Rejection of this report would have sent the bill again to conference for further adjustments to make it acceptable to a majority of the Senate.

There is no doubt but that a more substantial majority will be piled up in favor of the measure when a similar vote is taken in the House tomorrow. There is likewise every reason to expect Mr. Hoover will sign the measure. His friends have indicated he feels substantially the same way about the measure as Reed and Grundy.

Inventor Victim Of Robbery Scare

East St. Louis, Ill., June 13.—(UP)—Frank Protroski, a miner, lay in a hospital here in a critical condition today, the victim of a shotgun trap he had devised for burglars.

When his shack was robbed recently, Protroski decided to do something about it. He placed a double-barreled shotgun in the clothes closet, the barrels pointing toward the door. By an ingenious arrangement of wires and pulleys, the shotgun trigger would trip when the door was opened.

Hungry after a hard day's work, Protroski hurried home to prepare himself a meal. Without thinking he opened the door to the shack. His device worked. The gunshot lodged in his hips and lower part of his body.

Kirk gave his address as Detroit, and said he was chloroformed and mistreated by two men from whom he accepted a motor car ride. He was hitch-hiking here from Des Moines, he said, and had been employed on an Iowa farm.

Drop Inquiry Of Midnight Battle

A contender for the heavyweight belt which is now a somewhat disputed possession in the world's fistic circles, might possibly be claimed for Dixon, according to information which was gleaned last evening by Chief J. D. Van Bibber and Sheriff Ward Miller in investigating the assault upon Edward Holland and Edward Murphy Wednesday night near the entrance to the Dixon state hospital grounds.
Refusal on the part of both Holland and Murphy to divulge the names of their assailants, the number being hinted at least a half dozen, led to the official investigation. Last evening the officers learned that there were not six, but only one, who administered one knockout and gained a decision in the second midnight battle Wednesday. Other developments of the investigation led to the dropping of any further prosecution insofar as the officers are concerned, it was said today. Both Holland and Murphy are convalescing from their injuries.

go murderer; and Vernon Smith, 21, Chicago robber.
The five were caught by guards between 4 A. M. and 3 P. M., as they entered the prison chair factory one by one. Each took turns at sneaking away from his regular duties to slip into the factory and work on the tunnel. Bricks had been removed from the floor and dirt scooped from the bore was deposited in a broken joint of a sewer pipe. After they left the hole, the bricks were replaced.
The brothers as trustees were permitted in the chair shop during the noon hour to oil machinery. They started a separate sharp pick and an extension cord to supply light. The dirt was placed beneath a bench. Near the entrance to their proposed path to freedom guards found a wrapped package of toasted bread.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Mentzer at LaFayette, Ia., occurred the marriage of their youngest daughter, Oma Pearl, and Edward Holbrook, Saturday, June 7th, at 8 P. M. in the presence of immediate relatives and a few friends.
The Rev. Geo. J. Roth of the Alburnett Evangelical church read the marriage service using the double ring ceremony. While Mrs. Roths played the wedding march the bride couple took their place unattended before the double windows, decorated with white roses and ferns. Soft music was played while the vows were taken. The living room was decorated with American beauty roses furnished by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Reynolds, from her flower garden. Iris and peonies were used to complete the decorations.
The bride's dress was white silk crepe made in a basque effect with a circular skirt. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift of the groom and carried a bouquet of tea roses and white lilies. The groom wore the usual dark suit.
After the ceremony and congratulations a dainty lunch was served by Miss Helen Heffner and Mrs. Pauline Mentzer under the supervision of Mrs. J. I. Heffner.
Mrs. Holbrook was graduated from Western Union Academy at LeMars, Ia. She also attended college two years at Naperville, Ill., specializing in Art and Domestic Science. For the past two years she has been a very successful teacher in the schools at Franklin Grove, Ill.
Mr. Holbrook is a native of Maryland. For the past 8 years he has made his home in Franklin Grove. He attended high school at Baltimore, Maryland. At the present time he is employed by the Dixon Fruit Co. as a salesman.

WEST ROOM

THERE is always charm in a south room
Where the warm noon sun will stay;
But oh! for a breezy west room
With light at the end of the day.

One can hear the rainstorm
And the roostle blare and heat,
If only, at the sunset,
The light fall pure and sweet.

The west room looks on the mountains
Veiled in a silver mist;
The west room looks on the mountains
In pearl and amethyst:

The west room looks on the mountains
Make under moonbeams play—
And the west room looks on the mountains
Rosy in a new day!

The Alphas Theta Chapter of the Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority, a national educational and cultural society, was installed at a dinner at the Nachusa Tavern Thursday evening by Miss Adelia Prichard of Portland, Oregon, national director, and Miss Lola C. Brandon of Chicago, regional director.

Miss Marie LeSage was appointed educational director and Miss Frances Patrick membership secretary. The following officers were elected: President—Miss Mary Evelyn Miller.

Vice President—Miss Esther Kestel.

Recording secretary—Miss Ingelita Robertson.

Corresponding secretary—Miss Frances White.

Treasurer—Miss Alethea Hubbell.

Miss Brandon opened the meeting and introduced Miss LeSage, who in a very gracious and charming manner gave the welcome to the members and their guests. This was followed by the purpose of the sorority, which was given by Miss Prichard, who explained that the group was not for the social activities that it could gain, but for the educational work. She stressed the sense of loyalty and friendship that the members have for fellow members. She told of the blue and gold as the colors of the organization, and of the emblem, the open book with leaves of gold, with blue characters representing the sorority on its open pages.

During the installation service each member who signed the charter was presented a rosebud with one of the sorority pins, pinned to a fold of blue and gold ribbon.

Fine Meeting Lee Co. Council A. L. Aux. At Paw Paw

The annual spring meeting of Lee County Council American Legion Auxiliary, Dept. of Illinois, was held at Paw Paw in the gymnasium of the new school building, Wednesday June 11. There was a splendid representation from all units of the county, except one. Meeting was called to order at 10 A. M. with all officers in their chairs. The officers were as follows:

President—Clarabel George, Dixon.

Vice President—Charlotte Prentice, Paw Paw.

Treasurer—Tillie Brasel, Lee Center.

Secretary—Lila Wagner, Dixon.

Chaplain—Ruth Hussey, Franklin Grove.

Sergeant at Arms—Maud Conlon, Franklin Grove.

Musicians—Hazel Douglas, Rollo.

Registration—Nettie Frezzel, Lee Center.

Color Bearers from Dixon Unit: Stella Schmucker, Harriet George, Ruby McIntyre, Mary Elliott.

After the opening service of the Legion Auxiliary and introduction of the county officers, Mrs. Katherine Bartling, Dept. Jr., vice president was escorted to the presidents' station by the color bearers and introduced. The color bearers then retired and escorted in Mrs. Minnie Dickie of Paw Paw unit who welcomed the visitors. Mrs. Dorothy Trenchard of Dixon responded to Mrs. Dickie's lovely words of welcome. The morning session of business included reports of the county officers, reports of the years work of each unit is the council. These were all splendid and showed a fine amount of rehabilitation work done. Also child welfare work. Several units reported much civic work done. Following these reports Mrs. Bartling gave a most inspiring address on the Legislative program of the American Legion and the child welfare program of the Legion Auxiliary. She told of the needs of many thousands of hospital beds that are needed for our disabled World War Veterans in hospitals all over our United States, of the constant efforts of the American Legion thru our representatives at Washington to secure the passing of bills providing this necessary housing for our veterans. She told of the vast income of the United States; that the manufacturers of the Camel cigarettes alone, pays a tax of one half of a million dollars a day to our government. She told of the red propaganda carried on in our country, that there are many camps of "The Young Pioneers." This organization teaches young men and boys to trample and spit on the stars and stripes, and to pledge allegiance to the red flag of communism. She spoke of the opportunity fund created by the Legion Auxiliary to aid the children at Normal when they have reached the age that they must leave the Orphans Home there. She asked all units to contribute to this.

At the close of this address, Mrs. Hazel Douglas and Miss Dorothy Bryant sang a lovely vocal duet. The picnic dinner was served out of doors, the visitors being seated at four long tables arranged in a lovely corner of the school grounds. The menu left nothing to be desired. At 1:30 the memorial service for the deceased members of the council was given. The names of fifteen members were read, a beautiful tribute paid to their memory.

Franklin Grove unit invited the county council to a picnic at the county grounds there, date to be arranged later. This invitation was accepted. County officers for the coming year were then elected. Mrs. Charlotte Prentice of Paw Paw, is the new president. Mrs. Lila Wagner of Dixon, vice president; and Mrs. Tillie Brasel of Lee Center was reelected treasurer. All other officers are appointed by the county president. Mrs. George Lyman, the retiring president, installed these new officers into office. The courtesy committee read the resolutions of thanks to the Paw Paw ladies for their hospitality, and an expression of thanks to all who had helped to make the day so very enjoyable. A lovely tribute of thanks was given Mrs. George who had served for two years as county president. Mrs. Stella Olson a past president, of Capron Unit, and a member of the 12th District Ladies Quartet, was a visitor for the day.

Social Circle Annual Picnic Wednesday

For the last course there were plenty of ice cream, strawberries and ice cream which was much enjoyed by all.

After dinner some of the men pitched horseshoes, others spent the time in pleasant chat, while the ladies also spent the time socially. And the young people amused themselves with the various sports on the grounds. In the late afternoon the company dispersed after enjoying a very happy day at the park.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Albion Seavey, at which time the losing side, in the apron contest, will serve the dinner to the winning side.

WHEN THE THRILL GOES.

The Graf Zeppelin has finished her triangular flight from the old world to the new. The big airship's performance in the air is so taken for granted now that the average American probably did not bother to pay much attention to it. The thrills of the earlier flights were missing. No one doubted but that the Zeppelin would get safely to wherever she was going, with all of her passengers unharmed, no matter how bad the weather.

That fact—the fact that a big airship carrying upwards of two score people could cross the ocean twice without stirring the public to any unusual pitch of excitement—is the most encouraging fact, for the air-minded, that aviation has yet developed.

Once mankind gets so used to a new invention that it refuses to get excited about it, that invention is about to be given steady employment.

As long as it is new and unusual and a little bit fear-inspiring, an invention makes a lovely toy but a poor business proposition. But when the newness has once worn off so that people won't pay much attention to it, the time for serious work has come.

That's what makes it look as if the dirigible is at last about to begin a period of real service to mankind.

Every new device has to go through that "toy" stage first. The early railroad trains were looked on as mechanical wonders, highly diverting to watch in action—but the railroads didn't become paying propositions until people had got over the first wonder.

Big crowds lined the waterfront to see Fulton's steamboat make its first trip. They cheered, waved flags and agreed it was a great show; but it wasn't until people got so used to the steamboat that they hardly bothered to look at it that the steamboat established itself as a commercial venture.

And the automobile. Remember how children—yourself among 'em, maybe—would run five blocks just to see one? They were great sights, then; but the automobile magnates didn't become multi-millionaires until that newness had all worn off.

That's the way things go. Already people are getting so that they will hardly look up when an airplane passes overhead—and the commercial airplane lines are beginning to prosper, at last. If people are getting used to dirigibles in the same way, these projected trans-Atlantic companies might just as well open for business.

THE NEED FOR ADVERTISING.

The importance of continued, uninterrupted advertising campaigns to the American manufacturer or distributor is strikingly emphasized by Roger Babson, economist, in an interview with Sturges Dorrance, president of Dorrance, president of Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., New York.

"Because 1930 is a census year," says Mr. Babson, "it is interesting to speculate what the census statistics will tell us about advertising as a force in American business. Merely for the purpose of illustration let us project the trend of former years and assume that the 1930 data will indicate that the United States as a market is increasing at the rate of 7000 new customers per day.

"Every day 7000 customers to whom your goods are absolutely unknown! Every day 7000 people with whom you must start all over again and tell them your story and teach them to use your products! It has always seemed to me that this is the greatest argument in the world for ceaseless advertising."

Nowadays any child of three who hasn't had a couple of major operations, says a writer, couldn't hold up its head in a prep school. That's why so many, on reaching college, feel privileged to take cuts at will.

The recent installation of a $7000 soda fountain on the U. S. cruiser Memphis is what you might call a new naval treat.

Then there was the Chicago gangster who became suspicious of the doctor who declared his baby's ailment was due to rickets.

Uncle Eph thinks the Jersey primary is just another one of those newfangled summer garments.

There's a law in Constantinople which makes it an offense to use the Arabic alphabet. Now they're talking Turkey.

Little Dorothy thinks that Baton Rouge is a new kind of cosmetic.

John Philip Sousa led 20 Salvation Army bands at one time. At least he knew his score.

Burned In Effigy

Bombay, June 12—(UP)—An effigy of Sir John Simon, chairman of the Simon Commission, was burned at Surat near here, last night in protest against the Simon report, part of which was published this week.

The marchers bearing the effigy wore black costumes and carried black flags.

A group of Swathis tribesmen, about 200 strong, was reported in Peshawar dispatches to be marching on Oghli, on the northwest frontier. Constabulary and British Infantry have been concentrated at Oghli sufficient to care for the situation.

Two outbreaks were reported yesterday in the Calcutta area. A Mowlem was killed and six others arrested when a police officer fired in self-defense against a mob which was threatening him at Panchra, 20 miles from Calcutta. One of the prisoners was a small boy who had stabbed the constable in the neck.

Twenty-three Hindus were arrested at Dacca when communal rioting between Hindus and Moslems broke out again. Police effectively suppressed the rioting.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Each Tiny had a lovely dance and it was fun to watch them prance around the floor, while music played a very snappy tune. The little girl they danced with had a wondrous time and she was glad that she had met the Tines. But, 'twas over pretty soon.

That night the Tines all turned in and dreamed about where they had been. Next morning they were feeling great and ready for some fun. They had their breakfast, then went out upon the porch and ran about. The scenery about the place was pretty, 'neath the sun.

"We'll take a row boat out today and in the open sunlight stay," exclaimed the friendly Travel Man. "Let's take our lunch along. The hotel folks will pack it right and we can eat with all our might. I'll do most of the rowing. I am feeling good and strong."

"Hurray!" cried Coppy. "That sounds great. Come on, now, let's not hesitate. I want to sit way in the back where I can bob around." And so they all rowing went and most all of the day was spent in merely loafing in a boat that turned out safe and sound.

That night they found a new surprise that fairly made them blink their eyes. Not far from their hotel they saw a very brilliant fire. "What is it?" Carpy loudly cried. "What is that blaze that we have spied?" "A bonfire," said the Travel Man. "Oh, look! It's rising higher!" And then he told the bunch, "At night they do their celebrating right. All winter long they plan up on their summer fun. Real sports events take place by day and everybody's feeling gay. And then they have a bonfire, when each day of sport is done."

BY AHERN

ents removed when he was a child. Yeats, intent on following his father's career, studied painting. But at the age of 24, when he published his first book of poems, "The Wanderings of Oisín," he decided he would thenceforth devote his whole attention to literature.

With a reputation established in the field of letters, Yeats in 1897 became interested in the formation of an Irish theater, and, with the aid of friends, founded the Irish Literary Theater in 1899. With the gradual development of this theater such writers as George Moore and "A. E." were attracted to it. The theater is also credited with creating new writers as J. M. Synge and Padraic Colum.

Always interested in the intellectual life of his country, Yeats was one of the founders of the Irish Literary Society. And for his intense devotion to the development of the fine arts in his country the government of the Irish Free State nominated him in 1922 as one of its first senators.

Britain Building Large Flying Boat

London, June 12—(UP)—The largest flying boat ever built in Great Britain is now in the course of construction and is expected to be completed and ready for flying tests this summer.

The complete specifications are still secret but it is known that the new ship which will be a monoplane, will have luxurious accommodation for fifty passengers and be driven by six Rolls-Royce motors totalling approximately 5,000 horse power.

It is designed to have a non-stop range of 2,000 miles, enabling a non-stop flight from Southampton to Malta, and is being built to test the possibility of developing a flying boat route from Great Britain to the Dominions without the necessity of alighting on foreign waters.

Much of the experience gained in construction of the big British supermarine-Napier military flying boats has been incorporated in the design of the flying craft.

Well-Known Davenport Resident Tells of Health Benefited in Every Way by Kavatore.

FRED JOHNSON

"Kavatore surely proved a God-send to me and I can thank it alone for restoring my health," said Fred Johnson of 1208 Perry Street, Davenport, Iowa. "I had been bothered with stomach and kidney trouble for some years. My food was hard to digest. My back ached constantly. Neuritis set in and only those who have lived through the terrible agonized suffering caused by these ailments can understand how much I suffered."
"I tried many different kinds of medicines but could not get the desired relief. A friend told me about Kavatore so I decided to try it. After I had taken only one bottle of this medicine my appetite increased and the food digested more easily than ever before. Soon the neuritis pains disappeared and I am no longer bothered with weak kidneys. I heartily endorse Kavatore to all who suffer as I once did."
Sufferers from rheumatism, neuritis, constipation, stomach, liver and kidney trouble, nervousness and such like ills tell stories as convincing as that of Fred Johnson.
Kavatore is sold by the best druggists in Dixon and in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Daily Health Talk

WHAT IS TOXIN-ANTITOXIN?
By Shirley W. Wynne, M. D. Commissioner of Health, New York City.
This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Institute are at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

All over the United States progressive health officers are making an intensive effort to rid their communities of diphtheria by means of toxin-antitoxin. An increasing number of towns already have succeeded so well that they have had no deaths from diphtheria for the past few years. Most of you have heard about the great success of antitoxin in the treatment of diphtheria, but many of you do not yet know of the great value of toxin-antitoxin in preventing diphtheria.

More than thirty-five years ago a German scientist, Behring, found that animals could be injected with gradually increasing doses of the poison made by diphtheria bacilli, that is with the toxin of diphtheria, so that after a time they would tolerate doses which would kill thousands of animals not so treated. Behring found that the treated animals had manufactured a protective substance, the so-called antitoxin, which enabled them to withstand the poison. This antitoxin is present in the serum of the animal's blood. Behring's great discovery consisted in the fact that this serum could be used to treat patients ill with diphtheria, enabling the little sufferers to overcome the disease which threatened their life. Diphtheria antitoxin has saved millions of lives in the thirty-seven years since its discovery.

In 1913 Behring showed that by injecting healthy children several times with a neutralized mixture of diphtheria toxin and antitoxin, giving only a minute dose which caused no ill effects whatever, the children so treated could be protected against diphtheria. This discovery was perfected by Park, a world renowned scientist who is director of laboratories of the New York Department of Health.

As at present prepared under Park's immediate supervision a minute amount of diphtheria toxin is neutralized with diphtheria antitoxin serum derived from a goat. This mixture, which is absolutely non-poisonous, is known as toxin-antitoxin. Healthy children injected with three doses of this toxin-antitoxin at intervals a week apart, respond by gradually manufacturing within their bodies increasing quantities of antitoxin. Within six months most of them have manufactured so much antitoxin that they are protected against diphtheria. Moreover, this protection appears to last them a life time.

Since diphtheria is a very dangerous and prevalent disease during early child life, it is important to give this protection to the little ones early. The best time is when the baby is nine months old, for then the little one will enter its dangerous second year protected against diphtheria. If you have a little baby at home safeguard it against diphtheria by having the doctor give it a course of toxin-antitoxin treatments.

WISCONSIN LAW BANS FIREWORKS ON JULY FOURTH

Only Smallest Pieces Allowed Inside Borders of State

Madison, Wis.—(UP)—The day has passed when father can give an exhibition with Roman candles and sky-rockets in front of the house on the Fourth of July.

A new fireworks law, designed to protect the small boy and the general public, will govern its first Independence Day this year.

The statute appears destined to deprive both father and son of fun which has been a customary part of the day's celebration in the past. To offset that fact, legislators who enacted the law argued that it also would cut down the day's casualties.

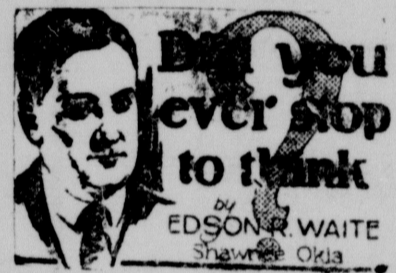

A permit from the city mayor, village president, or town chairman is necessary before Roman candles may shoot their colored bursts of fire, or skyrockets go sizzling through the air. Even then they must be discharged in an open field or on the water.

Failure to enforce the new law constitutes grounds for removal of officials charged with that duty. Such officials may require a $5,000 bond of the person or organization sponsoring the special fireworks display as insurance against personal or property damage.

Toy pistols, cannons, or other contrivances using explosive caps or cartridges, and any Chinese firecrackers more than two inches in length and three-eighths inch in diameter are banned from sale, manufacture, or importation into the state. Even the distance which pin wheels may throw their fire is restricted.

Any person who sells unpermitted fireworks is held responsible by this law for any damage they may cause. Likewise a father is personally liable for damage caused by his boy's fireworks if they are of the forbidden type.

Violation of any provision of the new law is subject to fine of $10 to $500, imprisonment from 30 days to six months in jail, or both.

Baseball Gossip

While other clubs have been getting most of the publicity, Roger Peckinpaugh's Cleveland Indians have been attending strictly to business, taking all rivals as they come, until today they had pushed into second place in the American League standing, only a game behind the pace-setting Philadelphia Athletics.

Great pitching by Ferrell, Brown and Hudin has been the outstanding feature of the Indians' upward surge since May 24. In the intervening three weeks, Peckinpaugh's men have won 14 games and lost only four.

The Indians' sixth consecutive victory yesterday and their second in a row from the Athletics enabled them to leap into second place while Washington was bowing to Chicago.

Clint Brown pitched great ball to give the Indians a shutout triumph over the A's, 4-0, granting only 4 hits. George Barnshaw pitched well but three of the eight hits he allowed were home runs.

The Senators bowed to Chicago's White Sox, 10-6, in a free-hitting battle that saw Ted Lyons chalk up his ninth victory of the season.

The New York Yankees fell on Waite Hoyt and two successors for 22 hits, including Babe Ruth's 20th homer of the season, and trounced the Detroit Tigers, 14-2.

Walter Stewart won his eighth victory for the St. Louis Browns, beating Boston, 6-5.

In the National League, Brooklyn stretched its lead to four and a half games by beating Cincinnati, 3-2.

Then the men feared the Lord exceedingly, and offered a sacrifice unto the Lord, and made vows.—Jonah 1:16.

NEWS of the CHURCHES

CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN
Corner 3rd and Madison
B. C. Whitmore, Pastor.

Sunday School next Sunday at 10 o'clock. The lesson for study is, "Jesus on the Cross." Do you really know why Jesus died on the cross?

Do you really know what His death has meant for the world at large? And do you know for sure, by actual experience, what His death has meant within your own soul? Would the world about us be the same had Jesus never died, or had never lived? The sermon at 11 will be, "A Divine Prescription."

The evening services with convene at 7. The C. W. Society, in the various departments, will have charge at that hour, and the evening sermon at 7:45 will be on the theme, "Finding Our Place in Life." This is a timely and practical theme for every person, and may be helpful to all. You and your friends are cordially invited.

15 HORSES IN DERBY
Chicago, June 13.—(UP)—While turf fans struggled with form sheets in an effort to pick the winner, some 15 three year old horses today were primed for the 22nd renewal of the $50,000 American Derby, tomorrow.

Never before has the favoritism of the fans been spread among so many horses and today it seems as though a draw from a hat, containing the names of the starters, would give one just as good a chance as all the form doing it is possible to go through.

Prominent among the horses receiving mention were Gallant Knight, Michigan Boy, Tannery, New O. Uncle Luther, Swinfield and Snowflake.

DANCING JUDITH

BY CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN
COPYRIGHT 1930 BY CHELSEA HOUSE

BRUCE GIDEON'S interest was manifestly aroused. He sat silent, watching them. Chummy, the fair girl, smiled at the men and talked. She looked quite vacant except when she smiled. They evidently treated her as a child. One of them patted her hand kindly as he moved away.

Presently the young men had all strolled away. Gideon turned to Stornaway.

"Could you introduce me?" he asked. "Do you know them?"

"Oh, yes," the artist replied with a smile.

The two men rose and walked over to the girl's table, and Stornaway told them who he was in his charming way.

"I don't expect you remember me, Miss Judy," he added; "but I have had the pleasure of meeting you, I don't come here often, now—don't get time, worse luck!"

"Oh, but, of course, you're a great high hat, Mr. Stornaway," the girl answered, with mischief in her eyes that lighted them and made them sparkle like amethysts.

Stornaway introduced Gideon. Judy nodded to him and presented him to her friend, whose name she gave as Miss Morley.

Chummy looked at him with her straight, soulless gaze. He saw that her eyes were golden brown, and that her beauty was really faultless, and must have been startling when illumined by intelligence.

"Oh!" she said in her deep, bell-like voice. "Oh, ugly man! Very ugly man! Man just like Punch!" Gideon wasn't at all touched about his appearance. He was supposed rather to glory in it. He saw that Judy tried to suppress the gleam of sheer amusement in her eyes.

Stornaway gave an embarrassed smile; but Gideon himself smiled broadly, thus distinctly adding to his resemblance to that typical figure of fun. He turned to the other girl.

"Didn't I hear that your name is Judy, Miss Grant?" he asked. When she smiled, the ill-nature disappeared from his face, but it gained in grossness. "We only want dog Toby to be complete."

"You mustn't mind what Chummy says," Judy answered. They talked for a few minutes; then other newcomers came up. Gideon could see that they were all desperately poor. In every stitch of Judy's clothing he saw penurious shabbiness.

The two men took their leave. It was still pouring with rain. Presently they found a cab.

Gideon sat silent for a few moments; then he expelled a sudden breath.

"What a monstrous shame it is!" he muttered.

"What is a shame?" asked Stornaway.

"That that girl should live that life!"

"Ab, so you realize what she might have been! You should have seen her when the famous Chanley sketched her portrait."

"Bab, I don't mean your love-sick moonbeam!" said Gideon. "Who do you mean?"

"Don't be a fool," the rich man replied impatiently. "Of course, I mean the other one."

"What Judy?" The artist laughed. "Did she strike you particularly? Of course, she's got a lot of go in her, but she's only a common little cat."

INSIDE the Cafe Turc the atmosphere grew thicker and thicker

"I have news," he whispered. "I've seen Alan Steyne—he's come back."

Through the smoky haze the faces of the customers showed like so many blurred, gray smudges.

It was getting late. Judy picked up her hat, clapped it on her head, and then rapped on the table with a penny.

Bastien Dumont, the Anglo-French artist, saw her. He rose, and he and another man strolled over to her table. His companion sat down beside Chummy and began to talk to her.

Dumont made a sign to Judy. There was something urgent in his lean, picturesque face. When one looked at him carefully, one saw that he was not quite so young as his warm, rich voice and alert figure led one to suppose. His eyes were both tender and sad as they rested on the girl's painted face.

"I have news," he whispered. "I have the most wonderful news for Chummy, but I don't know how to break it to her. What do you think, Judy? I've seen Alan Steyne—he's come back!"

The name was written on Judy's heart in letters of flaming hatred, although she had never seen the man himself. Alan Steyne, Chummy's false lover—the deserter, the slayer of Chummy's youth!

"He's come back!" she repeated in a low voice full of furious scorn. "Yes—I saw him today. He was driving a runabout. I knew him at once, although he has changed. He is prosperous."

"Did you speak to him?"

"Yes. He remembered me. He pulled up, and we had a chat. He asked after all the old gang. It seems that he's been abroad—trav-when they had been at the Cafe Turc together, and Judy said it was time to go home. Chummy had gone on reading a newspaper and said:

"No, I'll wait a little longer. Judy, I'm rather expecting somebody."

But that was all. She was very sweet-tempered; she loved the theater; she was restless if she missed going to the cafe a single day; she had a splendid appetite. On the whole, she was easily managed, and she accepted everything that was done for her without question.

Judy doubted whether Chummy remembered that she was Clarissa Morley, or that she had ever lived in another world and had relations and friends who were not perennially impetuous.

Judy shook out her mop of red-gold hair when she had brushed it well. She was perfumery with her cosmetics this morning, and left her flower face very nearly as God made it.

She found that Chummy had a heavy cold. While she dosed her, and lit a fire out of her scanty stock of fuel, she began her uneasy assault on her friend's dormant memory.

"Chummy, dear, would you be glad to see an old friend again?"

"What friend?" asked the other girl, with her innocent smile.

"A real old friend—someone you were very fond of, old girl!"

"I'm fond of you, Judy, and Bastien and Michael and all the boys," said the deep, bell-like voice.

"I know, but this is somebody you knew long ago. Don't you remember, Chummy? Someone you loved very much." Suddenly she flung her arms around her friend's neck and hugged her. "Someone you loved very, very much!"

"Yes, a man."

"I love me—I love them very much," said Chummy complacently.

"Yes—but one man—a quite particular boy, you know, not like the others. He's coming back. You'll see him tonight."

"Oh!" said Chummy blandly. "What do you mean?"

Judy gave it up.

DURING the day she went to Bastien Dumont's attic.

"I can't prepare Chummy," she told him. "She won't take it in. And she's got a vile cold. She can't go to the cafe tonight. Anyway, I wouldn't let her meet him there, in front of all the boys. I don't know how she'll take it. You must tell him about her, and bring him to see her at our place. You must tell him the best way you can. Of course, as soon as he knows, he'll want to come at once. I'll expect you tonight—about nine. Chummy mustn't be kept up late."

She clasped her hands excitedly. "Oh, Bastien, what a wonderful thing! When she sees him, it must all come back to her—it must be all right!"

"I'll do my best," he promised obediently. "But it is a nasty job." Judy went home and passed a day of feverish excitement. She threw out hint after hint to Chummy, who was quite unresponsive. Even the plainest words did not penetrate the darkness of her mind. Judy spoke then once right out.

"Chummy, your lover—Alan Steyne—has come back. He is coming to see you tonight."

Chummy smiled her baby smile.

CHAPTER I

IT WAS a stormy night in mid-January. The pavements were swept by drenching sheets of rain, and a piercing wind was blowing.

In that cosmopolitan corner of New York called Greenwich Village the streets were almost deserted by 10 o'clock. From behind the closed blinds of the little cafes and drinking shops came bursts of music and laughter.

Halfway down the narrow street, Bastien Dumont, tumbling down the steps leading to the Cafe Turc and pushing open the door, was met with a twang of a mandolin and a light, gay tenor voice singing "Funiculi, Funicula."

Bastien was Anglo-French, one of a score of struggling artists who frequented the little cafe. The place was something like a club for the indigent who would sip the wine of life, but who must have it cheap.

There were two rooms at the Cafe Turc—the first just below the level of the street, small and low ceiled with the bar, the coffee urns, and a rerod of bottles on the left; the second a few steps lower still, much larger, equally low in pitch, with sanded floor and some dozen tables, big and little, ranged round the walls. These walls displayed a collection of sketches, legacies from various artists.

One night a great man had sat there and laughed over his wine, and had turned and drawn a girl's head on the wall behind him. His had been a name to conjure with.

At the door the young man paused, blinking, and expelling a grateful breath.

"Peste," what a night!" he exclaimed. Groping his way through the bluegray fog to the shining counter, he shook the proprietor by the hand. "What a night!" he cried in a warm, youthful voice. "Is Judy here?"

The proprietor returned Dumont's greeting, and answered his question in the French language, which the young man had used.

"I have not seen Judy yet, M. Dumont; but she will doubtless be here. Chummy is in there." He jerked his thumb toward the inner room.

Dumont ordered coffee and cognac, and entering the inner room, was noisily greeted by a crowd of men at one of the larger tables.

AT a table on the opposite side of the room to the one at which Bastien Dumont had joined his friends, two men were sitting. Of the other tables, most were occupied by groups of twos and threes.

From time to time glances of curiosity were directed at the two men. For one thing, they were not habitués of the place, and it was seldom that strangers came to the Cafe Turc. One of them, however, was known to several people there. He was Vincent Stornaway, a successful portrait painter, who had long ago abandoned any pretense of a bohemian life. He exuded prosperity with his faintly picturesque clothes, his flowing tie, his golden-brown beard, pale cheeks, and clear, healthy skin.

His companion was known to nobody, and various unfattering comments were passed on his appearance. He was unprepossessing to a degree, his pallid face being fleshy and heavy-jawed, his eyes pale and small and sunk in puff bags, his forehead low and square and livid against a band of coarse, black hair.

"A libertine with a bad temper," murmured clever Tony Leigh, the cruelest caricaturist with the kindest heart in the world.

Judith Grant

"Good shot, Tony!" said another man. "I wonder who the chap can be!"

As a matter of fact, Stornaway's companion was Bruce Gideon, a financier, whose portrait the artist was painting as a present from an insurance company with which Gideon was associated. During the sittings Gideon had shown much interest in the life of artists, and the two men had become friendly to a certain extent.

Gideon had asked Stornaway to dinner at his apartment on Park Avenue, and had expressed a desire to see a real bit of the poorer Greenwich Village.

To the left of Vincent Stornaway and his companion was a young woman sitting at a table all alone. As other men and women came in, nearly all of them greeted her, and some lingered a moment by her side. A man now and then asked her to have some refreshment; but nobody sat down at her table.

She answered all greetings in the same way, without enthusiasm, as a matter of course. She accepted refreshment every now and then. From time to time she smiled a beautiful smile, like that of a child.

BRUCE GIDEON turned with an interrogation to Stornaway, who, as it happened, could enlighten him.

"That girl has a remarkable story," the artist said in a low voice, turning toward his companion so that his words should not carry. "Do you think her beautiful?"

"Not exactly," Gideon answered.

"Too colorless."

"She was considered the most Gideon said.

beautiful girl in New York some years ago," the artist continued. He pointed behind him to the glazed sketch surmounted by the crape-decorated wreath. "Chanley did this head of her. She was like a young Diana then."

Gideon had paid his homage to the dead master's work as he came in.

"Good Lord!" he said. "You don't mean that's the same woman? What happened to her?"

"Love," replied Stornaway. "She fell in love with a boy who used practically to live here—Alan Steyne, an artist. At least, he was trying to be an artist, and starving meanwhile. It was one of those terrible passions. They were inseparable—couldn't breathe apart. She was working at Willoughby's art school. She was about 18 at the time, and he was a few years older. She's the daughter of an Englishman. I've forgotten his name—he died in Switzerland, climbing—I can't remember which mountain. Her mother was dead long before."

Gideon turned, and his small eyes made a quick survey of the young woman's fair face.

"I thought she didn't quite fit in here," he said. "Go on, Stornaway. This is most interesting."

"One day Alan Steyne disappeared—just like that, without a word—just deserted her. She wasn't the kind that could stand it. It wasn't an ordinary love affair—not on her part, at any rate. She didn't exist apart from him, and everyone thought he was equally fond of her. I used to come here quite often in those days, and I saw a good deal of them."

"What became of the fellow?"

"He was considered the most Gideon said.

"Nobody knows—never heard of since. He was clever, but impatient—didn't care about going through the mill. He's never done anything in the art world, or one would have heard of him. The girl went to pieces—nearly died, you know; and when she struggled back again she was like she is now."

"Do you mean she's mad?" asked the rich man with interest.

"Not exactly. Silly, I should say—not quite all there—childish."

"And how does she live?"

"Everybody looks after her, as far as I can make out. She never painted since Alan Steyne left her. I don't quite know how it's managed, but nobody would let her want."

"Lately she's been living with another girl—a girl they call Judy. Someone told me that she was looking after Chummy. I think she's a model herself—a queer, savage-looking sort of a girl."

"How long ago did this happen?" Gideon asked.

"Let me see—about seven years ago, I suppose. Yes; it's five years since I used to come here regularly, and then Chummy was quite an institution."

SLIP of a girl pushed open the door and came into the Cafe Turc. She shook herself like a dog, and the raindrops fell from her in showers.

Everybody in the front room knew her and greeted her.

"Hallo, Judy! Cheerio, Judy! Welcome to the ark, Judy!"

The girl answered them all with laughing words in a voice that was husky, partly by nature, and partly owing to a bad cold. She advanced with a series of shakes, and finally divested herself of the shabby mackintosh she was wearing. Underneath, she had a very short skirt of a dark tartan, and a bright-green jersey with threads of gold showing here and there. On her head was a battered, white-felt hat, very much pulled over her eyes.

Judith Grant's face was gaudy with its cheap paint and powder and lamplight that sullied and disguised the wonder of its youth; but it was charming, for all that, and flowerlike. Once a man looked at it, he often had to look again and again.

She had a mop of short, red-gold hair and big eyes the color of dark-purple pansies, and a mouth that was always laughing. She was very small. Artists used her as a model for the line of her neck and shoulders, and for her hands and feet, which were pretty nearly perfect.

Sometimes, when her profession failed her, she got into a chorus. She was a born dancer, but she never stayed long, and had never achieved promotion on the stage. For one thing, she had no voice, and she was so small that she was lost in the crowd.

Her entrance into the inner room was greeted with another chorus. Everybody knew her.

"Hallo, boys!" she cried, as she jumped the three steps in a bound. She looked round and saw the fair girl alone at her table. "Ab, there's my family!" she exclaimed, walking over to Chummy, and flinging down her mackintosh on a chair and her hat on the top of it.

She sat down beside her friend, and Dan brought her a steaming tumbler of punch. Two or three of the men at the big table came over and talked to the two girls.

TITLE BATTLE IS JUST ANOTHER OF THOSE HEADACHES

Situation As Chaotic As Before As Result Of Sharkey's Foul

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
New York, June 13—(AP)—The fistic world that had hoped to wake up today to celebrate the crowning of a new and undisputed world's heavyweight champion discovered, instead, that it had just another headache,
hangover and controversy.

Max Schmeling won on a foul from Jack Sharkey within the last six seconds of the fourth round of what was to have been the decisive battle for the heavyweight title last night at the Yankee Stadium but they left the situation as chaotic as were the wild scenes accompanying the abrupt finish of the match.

Severely battered though he had been, the black-thatched 24-year-old German youth, who looks, bobs and weaves like the one and only Jack Dempsey, may, for the time being, be put at the top of the heavyweight class, at least by his own countrymen and by the New York State Athletic Commission, which presented him his right before-hand to crown the winner as the new champion of the world and successor, to Gene Tunney, who retired two years ago.

Schmeling's cause may be espoused further by the National Boxing Association and he is a candidate at least for the inscription of his name upon the Muldoon-Tunney Trophy, emblematic of championship recognition so far as its donors are concerned.

Claim Not Clear.
But today, cold analysis of the unsatisfactory and disappointing climax to a two-year search for a fi-monarch of heavyweight ranks appeared to offer no sound basis for proclaiming the young German possessor of honors universal in scope, where neither of the principals in the main test, before-hand, held any clear or undisputed claim to championship position.

Schmeling was hurt by a punch that was unquestionably low after having been decisively outboxed and outpunched by Sharkey. The German crumpled to the floor, to be carried to his corner and declared the victor only a few minutes after it seemed he was on the verge of being cleanly knocked out. In the third round, when the American battered his young rival all over the ring with a viciously sustained two-fisted onslaught.

BRIDGE GOLF

(How to Play It)

The golfer bids as to what score he will make on the hole he is about to play.

If he is playing in a twosome or foursome, the others have the privilege of underbidding the golfer or doubling him. He also has the right to redouble.

In case he shoots the hole in a stroke under what he bid, he is paid double the bet, if a bet has been made.

Where there is betting and the golfer is doubled, the bet is doubled and when redoubled, the bet is increased another notch.

If the golfer fails to make his bid, he must pay each member of the party the amount of his bet. If he shoots the hole in two strokes over his bid, he must pay double.

OVER A HUNDRED DIXON AND AMBOY LADS HAD LESSON

Telegraph's Base Ball Instructive Series Is Opened Thursday

A total of 125 boys from Dixon and Amboy and vicinity attended the first of the series of baseball lessons given by Sheriff Ward T.
Miller yesterday afternoon which are being sponsored by The Evening Telegraph. One hour's instruction was given at both fields where the boys congregated and they showed marked interest in the course of instruction imparted to them by their instructor who has had years of experience in the major baseball leagues of the country.

The proper stance at the home plate, the correct way to hold a bat so as to obtain the best driving power when the ball is hit, general alertness and accuracy were among the outstanding features of the initial lesson. Prospective pitchers at their own request were given some instruction of the ball to obtain the best results.

Mothers Watch Lesson
At the independent field, which was donated for the school of instruction by Frank Rink, no less than a hundred boys received instruction in the opening lesson of the series. Mothers brought their sons to the field in their cars and displayed a keen interest in the development of their boys' baseball ability. Many questions were asked by the older persons with reference to the school. At Amboy through the courtesy of the officers of the board of education the boys assembled at the township high school athletic field, but through a misunderstanding were dispatched to another lot for their first instruction.
At both places instructor Miller found very promising baseball ma-

As Gallant Fox Took Revenge

Gallant Fox, winner of the Wood Memorial, the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby, climaxed his three-year-old career by defeating Whicome, the favorite who defeated him in last year's Futurity, in the classic Belmont Stakes. The top photo shows "The Fox" with jockey Sande aboard, going under the wire several lengths in front of Whicome. Below, the Earl of Sande, left, president of Belmont track and William Woodward, right, owner of the year's greatest three-year-old and Sande's employer.

Boys asked for instructions on pitching, how to play shortstop or second base and manifested a great interest in the course. Two boys in particular, Francis Henry and George Carlson attracted the attention of the instructor as having promise as pitchers at the Dixon field.

Amboy Boys Interested

At Amboy there were 25 boys who reported for instruction, some being accompanied by their parents who appeared equally interested in the lessons as were their boys. The interest was quite tense and before the instructions closed a game had been scheduled for next week. Bob Leake's Riverides issued a sweeping challenge to John Powers Colts which was accepted without delay, the managers of both teams insisting that Sheriff Miller umpire the game at the close of the course of instruction there next week.

The popularity of the course of baseball instruction sponsored by The Telegraph has spread throughout the county and inquiries have been received from every section.
Some from Ogle county have asked to be admitted to the courses and have been assured a hearty welcome at all times. Residence in Lee county is not essential and every boy is welcome to attend any of the schools. A request was received yesterday from Paw Paw asking that at least two lessons be given the boys of that vicinity and Sheriff Miller has consented. Henry Knecht, another Harry Towne have been named in Paw Paw where boys of that locality may register and be informed the dates of the lessons in that city.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER

A Fallen Hero

Maybe this picture will make you hope you never take up horseback riding. But isn't as serious an accident as it appears to be. The unfortunate rider shown here is of stone—a statue of General Nathaniel Greene in Stanton Park, Washington. After weathering gales and blizzards for 51 years, it was toppled from its pedestal by a June breeze.

DANCING JUDITH

BY CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

VINCENT STORANWAY, successful portrait painter, takes BRUCE GIBSON, wealthy banker, to New York's Greenwich Village, to give him a glimpse of the bohemian life of the world of artists. There he introduces him to JUDITH GRANT, artist's model, whom she and the painter of the Cafe Ture and her friend, CLARISSA MORLEY, who is known as Chummy, and tells him of Chummy's tragic history. Seven years ago she had loved ALAN STEYNE, an artist. Steyne deserted her abruptly, and she shook unblinded her mind, so that she has been childish in her manner processes ever since. She lives with Judith, who looks after her and supports her. After the two men leave the cafe, BASTIEN DUMONT, another artist, tells Judith that Steyne has come back to New York, and tries to arrange a meeting between Steyne and Chummy. However, finds that Chummy does not even remember Steyne's name, still, she arranges for a meeting in the attic apartment she and Chummy share together.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

AT nine o'clock Judy had everything ready. Chummy sat in her chair like a lovely doll. Judy had made the room as clean as she could. There were two brightly colored shawls pinned on the drab walls. She had recklessly invested in eight yellow jonquills, which brought sunshine into the dingy place. The kettle was singing on the fire.

Listening with all her ears, Judy caught light, hurried footsteps on the stairs. She went out on the landing.

The great moment had arrived. Judy's face was white in the light of a naked gas jet. She wore a little black frock, very short in the skirt and sleeves, and low in the neck, showing that lovely, innocent curve of throat and shoulder that artists raved about. A string of red beads hung about her waist. Her thin stockings consisted chiefly of darns, and the cheap, exaggerated shoes could not disguise her perfect feet.

Footsteps sounded on the stairs. It seemed to her that they lagged. Dumont appeared first, his companion followed a flight behind him.

Judy devoured his appearance with her bright, excited eyes. This was Chummy's young man. How often she had wondered what he looked like! How often she had wondered at the fidelity of a heart that could be plunged into darkness by the disappearance of any man on earth!

Her mind was too feverish to grasp details. She got an impression of a tall figure and a handsome face, which struck her particularly with its supreme fitness. Alan Steyne looked strong and energetic enough to jump over the moon, she thought. His eyes held hers with a laugh in them—and something else. He was fair, and his face was very tanned. He looked as if he always got what he wanted. Those were Judy's first impressions.

He addressed her in a voice whose naturally careless ring was contradicted by the anxious look in his eyes.

"Miss Grant, do you really think it is wise for me to see Miss Morley tonight? Dumont has told me every thing. I am so dreadfully sorry, but—I mean, oughtn't she to be prepared?"

He broke off, looking at her helplessly. Judy shook her head, and the mop of red-gold hair glittered like a bright waterfall.

"It's no good preparing her," she answered quickly. "I've tried and tried. Oh, Mr. Steyne, when she sees you, that'll do the trick all right!"

The three looked at each other.

Alan Steyne stood in front of the girl who had lost her wits for love of him. . . . Clarissa Morley smiled up blankly into his face.

"What are we to do?" asked Judy's purple eyes.

"What are we to do?" asked Bastien Dumont's black eyes.

"What am I to do?" asked Alan Steyne's blue eyes.

There was nothing to do. Chummy did not know her lover. To her he was only a handsome boy—one of the many she met and talked to and smiled at every day. Chummy loved men and boys; she always said so with her sweet complacency.

There was silence. Alan Steyne's hard breathing could be heard.

Chummy went on smiling, and blew her nose again.

"He's a very handsome boy," she said. "And I like him, but I don't know him, Judy." She looked at the young man and asked inconsequently, "Is it cold out? Won't you come to the fire and have some beef tea?"

ALAN STEYNE advanced, and Judy pointed to a broken-down basket chair, into which he carefully lowered himself.

"Yes, it is cold," he said. He had one of the nicest voices Judy had ever heard.

"I should love some beef tea. But are you sure you don't remember me, Clarissa? I am Alan. Don't you remember, at the Cafe Ture every night? What fun those days were! I was nearly starving—and you painted so beautifully! And we used to walk in Central Park. Surely you must remember, Clarissa?"

Not a trace of enlightenment came into Chummy's face.

"Did you come to the cafe long ago?" she asked. "I dare say. I knew such lots of boys and men at the cafe; but I don't know you. I like you. Tell me about yourself while Judy makes the beef tea. Judy went out of the room to fetch cups from a cupboard in her box of an attic. She looked at Dumont as she passed him. Her eyes spoke plainly:

"He can't make love to her while we're there."

Dumont followed her. Chummy and her lover were alone.

They were an unconscionable time fetching the cups and the biscuits. When they came back, Steyne had moved nearer to Chummy, and she was looking more like an angel than ever.

"I like this boy," she said, laughing with a purring sound. "We are going to be great friends."

They drank beef tea and ate biscuits, and smoked and laughed, and nobody would have known that Judy had not enough money in her purse to buy their food on the morrow. It was ten o'clock before Steyne took his leave. Dumont went with him. Chummy smiled radiantly at Alan, and asked him to come again, as if they had spent an hour in an unreal land. Judy dismissed the men with a joke; but she felt very flat and tame as she went back to Chummy.

ABOUT ten minutes later Chummy was in bed and asleep, with her flaxen plaits lying like silvery cables on the pillow. Judy shut the door softly and went out upon the landing on her way to her own room. Light, firm footsteps on the stair made her pause, and Steyne ran up, slightly breathless. With one hand he took off his hat, with the other he drew something from his overcoat pocket.

"I say," he said very rapidly, "I do hope you won't mind, Miss Grant—I mean my coming back; but I wanted—well, Dumont told me about poor Miss Morley, you know—about her condition, and what an angel you've been to her. Of course it isn't fair, and as an old friend of hers I want you to take this—for her, you know, to get her things she wants—nice things to eat, and clothes, and all that. Please do say you're not offended!"

He held out some bank notes. Judy flushed crimson. She was a regular little Lucifer in her pride, but for Chummy's sake she answered with a spasm of gratitude, clutching at the notes and holding them as if they burned her.

"I mustn't say no, of course, I'm not offended. It's for Chummy, and seeing that you're going to marry her it's only right. Of course, I know it's been rotten for her here. She's not like me or like lots of our little crowd—she's a lady, and all that. I suppose you'll want to take her away at once and put her in some nice place until you're married."
